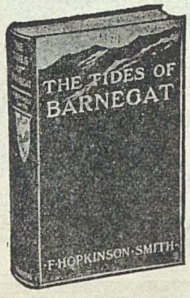
F. HOPKINSON SMITH'S

GREAT NOVEL

The Tides of Barnegat

This is the greatest story that F. Hopkinson Smith has ever written. Against the strong and stormy background of the Barnegat Shore he has drawn a thrilling and absorbing tale of love and self-sacrifice, of tragedy and comedy, leading up through sunshine and storm to a tremendous ending. The old Captain, the Doctor, Miss Jane, Lucy and Archie are people that live and will live. No writer of fiction to-day is better known and liked than Mr. Smith and this is his best book.



The great success of the story as a serial in Scribner's Magazine proves its popularity.

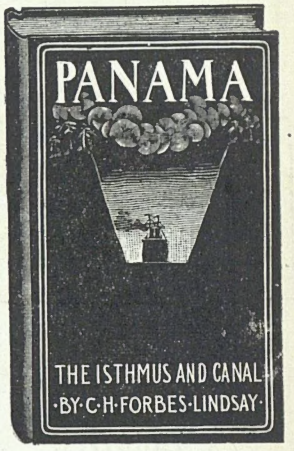
PANAMA

The Isthmus and the Canal

BY

C. H. FORBES-LINDSAY

Author of "The Philippines Under Spanish and American Rules," "America's Insular Possessions," "India: Past and Present," Etc.



BOOKSELLERS: This work contains in full the information which has not yet been published to satisfy the popular demand, and it is placed on the market at an exceedingly low price.

The Latest Authoritative Information

In the preparation of this volume he has been afforded all the facilities at the command of the War Department and the Isthmian Canal Commission. These opportunities, and the author's familiarity with the ground he describes, enabled him to make an exceptionally accurate, comprehensive statement of present conditions and future prospects in the Canal Zone. This is the only book published which contains a full and definite survey of the Panama Canal as it will actually be constructed. No other book has been written on this subject with all the authoritative details of the situation as it is to-day. Mr. Forbes-Lindsay describes the final plans, projected on the 85-foot level with a dam at Gatun, which have been approved and by which the great water-way will be finished.

Latest Maps and Illustrations

The book contains two large inserted maps, made from the latest government charts; one a profile showing the relative heights and depths across the isthmus and the construction of the canal; the other a surface plan, in two colors, tracing the route to be followed and showing how the enormous difficulties of the enterprise are to be met. There are also explanatory maps in the text and numerous photographs of different points on the course of the Canal, including views of the digging already done and portraits of the principal executives connected with the work.

The Romance of The Canal

Ever since the Spaniards discovered that a great ocean lay beyond this narrow strip of land, ambitious men have devised schemes to cut the isthmus. None was realized; DeLesseps and his gigantic failure seemed to paralyze the world until Theodore Roosevelt made this great benefit to humanity a certainty. Mr. Forbes-Lindsay's telling of this checkered history is very interesting reading, and no less so is his chapter on other great canals of the world compared with that of Panama.

A Popular Book

In handling a subject which might easily have been dry, he has made his "Panama" an interesting as well as a valuable book. It is enjoyable from beginning to end and it gives the reader a complete grasp of the situation.

NOTES IN SEASON.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. have in press A. Conan Doyle's new novel, "Sir Nigel," which may be expected some time next month.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have in preparation a new story by Mrs. Clara Louise Burnham entitled "The Opened Shutters," which deals with the experiences of a girl from the West on a farm near Casco Bay.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have just ready the "Buster Brown Antics," "Foxy Grandpa's Frolics," "Willie Westinghouse Edison Smith," "The Tricks of the Katzenjammer Kids," "The Travels of Happy Hooligan," "The Trials of Lulu and Leander," "Jimmy and His Scrapes," "Sam and His Laugh," and "Maud." Each volume is fully illustrated and is authorized by its artist.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. will publish shortly a work on "Great Riches," by President Eliot, of Harvard, who does not view the amassing of wealth by the "favored few" with alarm. He sees counterbalancing forces at work, which will operate as successfully in the future as they have done in the past. In this day of shrieking and denunciation his calm appraisal of the situation is of value.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish on September 29 Gilbert K. Chesterton's "Life of Charles Dickens." The volume is a general justification of Dickens and of the humor of which he was the last survival. His achievement is compared with those of later days. Each of his novels is dealt with in turn, while the last part of the volume is given over to a general estimate of the influence of Dickens.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just brought out F. Hopkinson Smith's new novel, "The Tides of Barnegat." This is a strong and vigorous story written against the background of the shores of Barnegat. It is the best and most thoughtful story that Mr. Smith has ever written. The strength and interest of the characters, the dramatic quality of the story with its tremendous ending and the splendid way in which the whole material is handled make it a very unusual book. Its success as a serial in Scribner's Magazine has been a splendid promise of its popularity as a book.

MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY announce for early publication John W. Munson's "Reminiscences of a Mosby Guerrilla." Mr. Munson joined the Partisan Rangers in the beginning of their career and was one of the very last to leave Mosby after the war was over. Throughout he was one of the most daring and resourceful of the guerrillas, as he was one of the most trusted by their famous chief. In writing these reminiscences he has had the hearty co-operation not only of Colonel Mosby himself, but of many active members of the command who are still living. He has been at great pains to gather the actual facts of every important raid and skirmish which he describes, consulting Federal and Confederate records as well as the personal recollections of men engaged on both sides. They will publish in September "Her Brother's Letters," which, the Ladies' Home Journal reports, has aroused greater interest and provoked more "letters to the editor" than any serial feature which has appeared in its pages for years. It will be illustrated by Relyea and Wilson. Their new Christy book, to be ready in October, will be entitled "The American Girl as Seen and Portrayed by Howard Chandler Christy," and is considered to be the most elaborate of the books in colors issued under his name.

Fogazzaro, Antonio. The saint (Il santo); tr. from the Italian by M. Agnetti Pritchard; with an introd. by W: Roscoe Thayer. N. Y., Putnam, 1906. c. 28+476 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Piero Maironi, "the saint," was the hero of "Piccolo mondo antico," an artist and dreamer who fell in love with a woman separated from her husband while his own wife was in the lunatic asylum. On her deathbed the deranged wife sent for Maironi; he was plunged in remorse and for three years was lost to the world. He turns up a lay brother whom the people learn to look upon as a saint. The story is an appeal to the laity for greater independence of thought, a deeper sense of responsibility, a more serious purpose in life; to the clergy for wider tolerance, a more ethical teaching and more perfect disinterestedness. A dramatic scene is the meeting between Pius x. and "the saint." "The saint" has been put upon the Index Prohibitorum of the Catholic church. Fogazzaro is a Catholic, but he ventures to criticise the present attitude of the church towards personal interpretation and pure unselfish living.

Forman, Justus Miles. Buchanan's wife: a novel; il. by Will Grefé. N. Y., Harper, 1906. [Ag.] c. 5+291 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

By the author of "Tommy Carteret" and "The Garden of Lies." A woman of twenty-five is unhappily married to a very rich man owning an estate on the sea in the vicinity of New York City. While she is entertaining a house party, among them the man she loves, her husband disappears. After three years she identifies the body of a man supposed to be Buchanan and marries the man she has always loved. Then follows a weird, improbable and uncanny story of surprises and fears which seriously affect the remarried wife. Some of the situations are highly dramatic.

Gilliam, D: Tod, M.D. The Rose Croix; il. by Ted Ireland. Akron, O., Saalfield Publishing Co., [1906.] c. 2-369 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The hero, a young West Pointer, meets the heroine, the daughter of the Mexican Minister, by chance, in the rotunda of the Capitol at Washington in 1833. An ideal love springs from this meeting, the starting point of a narrative that shifts its scene constantly from America to Europe, giving itself to the erratic movements of the hero and the mysterious acts of the heroine, who are the principles in many strange adventures. The Masonic fraternity will be interested in some of the chapters. Scenes are included from the war for Texan independence.

These plays are all intended to be read by the characters, not committed to memory and recited or acted. Object is to restore to the Bible the vividness of impression so often missed when text is droned out by one reader. A special character, the "Narrator," indicates the action and change of scene. Simplicity is to be the keynote of the exercise. A diagram for each play shows how the characters should be grouped to make the reading most effective.

Author now holds Chair of Zoölogy in Throop College, Pasadena, Cal. He points out that to-day a thousand branches of trade and commerce require knowledge that can be obtained only through nature study. The story of lower animal life is presented on broad lines, divested of technicality, and at almost every step supplemented by forceful and explanatory illustrations as ocular aids to the teacher. Special attention is given to the fauna of the Pacific Coast. Can be used as text-book for intermediate grades and as supplementary reader.

Author is Emily Sanford Professor of English Literature in Yale University. Designed for general readers who enjoy poetry but think they might enjoy it more if they found its metrical structure less bewildering. The author distinguishes clearly between conclusions based on scientific reasoning and conclusions based on his own individual taste. In six chapters he treats of Rhyme and metre; The pentameter line; Blank verse; Rimed pentameters; Miscellaneous metres; and Embellishments of verse. Also of interest to scholars and professional metrists.

Written by a woman who has already made a reputation with successful books but prefers to publish this anonymously. The story of a country doctor in Virginia who works day and night for his fellow-men. He is unmarried and his adoring niece keeps his home. She has two lovers; the one she chooses is the son of the doctor's only love. A case of lynching is realistically described, the doctor saving the negro from the mob and incurring the wrath of his fellow townsmen. The girl's lover, a doctor, and the son of a straight-laced minister, becomes the master-man of the town.

By the author of "In the Bishop's carriage." A story of San Francisco in its days of prosperity before the great disaster. The heroine is a newspaper woman, keen, alert, self-reliant, abreast of the times; the hero an idealistic, altruistic dreamer, searching for truth in new religious and new socialistic schemes. He tries every kind of manual labor in his wish to help all in need by example, advice and money. The brilliant up-to-date woman at last yields to her great love for his fine character, but he distinctly tells her she will only take her place in his great scheme for making the world better and happier.

Sinclair, May. Audrey Craven. [Author's ed.] N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1906. 4+328 p. D. cl., †$1.50.
Another of the earlier books of the author of "The Divine Fire." At twenty-five Audrey Craven is introduced as "mistress of her own person, her own income, and her own house in Chelsea, London." She was a person of inordinate physical and spiritual vanity, and was always seeking excitement, amusement and new revelations. She was wholly selfish and flirted with every new thought on art, religion and literature and the men who held them. She proved a bad influence in the lives of her cousin, of a realistic writer and of a painter. After her exacting expectations her marriage offers a surprise.

Author is instructor in political economy in the University of Michigan. He thinks the ideal of railroad control is to give a commission the opportunity of adopting public utility as the controlling principle in rate making, and of giving efficient expression to that principle. Gives a list of cases that have come up before the United States Supreme Court from 1876 to 1902; and a list of cases before the lower courts from 1881 to 1901.

Smith, Francis Hopkinson. The tides of Barnegat; il. by G: Wright. N. Y., Scribner, 1906. c. '05. 6+422 p. D. cl., †$1.50.
The story opens some fifty years ago in an old house built in early Revolutionary times on the Atlantic coast near Barnegat. Jane and Lucy Cobden are the only surviving members of the family that had built the house. They live alone with a faithful old nurse. Lucy is introduced on the day of her homecoming from a finishing school. Jane, her elder by ten years, had promised her father on his deathbed to be a mother to her young sister. Lucy, beautiful, selfish and headstrong, gratifies her love of pleasure utterly regardless of right, nearly breaking Jane's heart. Jane's story is one of cruel self-sacrifice carried on for many years to save Lucy's good name. The characters are quaint and picturesque, and the concluding scenes dramatic. Published serially in Scribner's Magazine.

The commentary is drawn entirely from Swedenborg's own writings. For every passage of the Gospel that is quoted, with only few exceptions, all that he has written on the passage is given. The commentary is based upon the General Indexes to Swedenborg's Theological Works of Le Boys des Guays and Searle. The Bible text is that issued by the American Revision Committee in 1900. Similar commentaries on other books of the Bible will follow. That on the Gospel According to John will be the next one issued.

Story based upon an imaginary war betwen Great Britain and Germany shortly after the opening of the Panama Canal. A courageous newspaper reporter is forced to become an eye-witness, almost a participant, of the naval operations in the West Indies. The accounts of the horrors of modern warfare, and the ghastly scenes on board one of the new naval fighting machines in action, are powerfully realistic. How the preponderance of foreign sailors may threaten the English navy is thoughtfully brought before the reader.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 18, 1906.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

ARRANGEMENT AND CARE OF A STOCK OF SECOND-HAND BOOKS.*

THE arrangement and care of a stock of old books do not differ much from the arrangement of a stock of current books, except that a dealer in old books will very likely always find it convenient to keep books of a certain class together. The collector, being interested in subjects, will not care to take up his time in "browsing" through the bookseller's stock to find what he knows he exactly wants. After he has exhausted the divisions allotted to the books in which he is interested, he may be tempted to devote his spare time to the remainder of the bookseller's stock—but rarely until then.

Whenever possible, especially if room permits, books should be placed regularly upright on the shelves, and not piled up on their sides, even if a little space may be saved by such a proceeding. It will happen more frequently than is supposed by the beginner that the desired book in such a pile is always at the bottom, and to get at it will necessitate the upsetting of the whole pile, and subsequent loss of time in its rearrangement. Some booksellers arrange their stock alphabetically by authors, others by the numbers the books bear in their catalogues, etc.; but; for the reasons already given, most booksellers prefer to arrange their stock by subjects, depending upon their stock-lists for author and number when books are ordered from catalogues.

The arrangement and care of a stock of books generally, including the building of shelves and drawers, etc., having already been circumstantially described in "The Profession of Bookselling," Part 1, pp. 25-31, a reference to that chapter must suffice. Further suggestions on classification, etc., will be given in a later chapter. It is of the greatest importance that every book be kept in sight, and that the most careful handling of the stock should be insisted upon, because when a number of volumes of a set are doubled up, that is, placed behind their fellows standing in the front row, some of the books may be shifted from the place where they were intended to stand, or fall through to a lower shelf, and thus cause loss of time when they are wanted and sometimes loss of a sale when they cannot be readily found. The same will happen if the bookseller or his assistants do not watch their stock carefully after a customer has pulled out any number of books and either has left them on a ledge or some other convenient resting place, or, what is sometimes worse, has replaced them on the shelves himself. A book misplaced through such a cause may miss a chance of being sold for months unless it is discovered and put in its right place at once. A bookseller thoroughly acquainted with his stock, if he trains himself to attend to such a detail immediately after a fussy customer leaves his shop, would be likely to miss a given book from its proper place at once, and so trace it then and there; whereas if he neglected such a duty he might assume, when another customer called for such a book later, and the book were not in its place, that it had probably been disposed of, and so he might lose a sale. If months or years after he should by accident come across it again, the book may have lost considerably in value. As an illustration of this we recall a characteristic note in one of the late Charles L. Woodward's catalogues calling attention to a book which he was offering at a much lower price than he had asked for it a year or two before, ascribing it to the fact that in some unwatched moment a disorderly person had probably removed it from its proper place on the shelf and stuck it in somewhere else, where it remained forgotten until its timeliness and value had both shrunken.

Rare books and manuscripts will of course be kept in safes or in dry fire-proof vaults. Books in fine bindings and other treasures may be displayed in locked showcases, lined with velvet or other soft material, and should be handled as little and as carefully as possible.

Folios and other unwieldy books, unless there should be sufficiently broad and high shelves at the bottom, should be kept separately, preferably laid flat on their sides, or in drawers. Separate plates, portraits, views and other illustrations are kept in drawers, in portfolios properly classified, and as nearly as possible in alphabetical order to make them available for ready reference.

The shop and stock should be kept well ventilated and well swept and dusted, as dampness and dust are two of the great enemies of books. The stock, especially the more valuable books, should be regularly dusted and from time to time, especially in the spring and fall, a general house-cleaning would be in order, even if an overhauling of the entire stock is not practicable. In these days of electric lighting and steam heating danger from fire is less to be feared. Where these are not available every precaution must be taken by guarding gas flames and stoves, and placing these as far from the books as possible, or, better still, by dispensing with them altogether whenever natural light is sufficient and the weather permits. Indeed, as gas and dry air seriously injure leather bindings, it will be well to keep the room in which books are kept at a lower rather than at a higher temperature, and to invent a system of ventilation that will keep the air, especially that at the ceilings, pure and cool. Besides this, the whole store should be thoroughly aired early in the morning and just before closing time in the evening.

Rats, mice, worms and other vermin must also be guarded against systematically. Traps will probably be effective against rats and mice; if not, a cat might prove a helpful aid in keeping them away. For obvious reasons, poisons should not be used in getting rid of these pests. The smaller vermin may best be dealt with by the frequent inspection of the better class of books, by the careful use of substances offensive to these pests, such as benzine, turpentine, camphor, etc., which may be placed upon cloths or sponges and laid upon the backs of the shelves, or by dusting them occasionally with an insecticide like pyrethrum, which is perfectly harmless to the human system though a powerful destroyer of insects. Against the two-legged pest, the book thief, eternal vigilance is the only remedy, and even that is not always a specific. Strangers with bundles, "grips," dress suit cases and other receptacles, and those with cloaks or loose coats with capacious pockets should be closely watched. It would always be well, as a matter of courtesy, to relieve visitors of their impedimenta and temporarily care for these until they depart. This would prevent a dishonest caller from filling bogus bundles or the "grips" and suit cases with books that the bookseller can ill afford to lose. An honest man would take no offence, and as for the dishonest man, his feelings need not be considered. An unknown customer who may display a weakness for lengthy inspections of rare illustrated books will also bear watching, because "for ways that are dark and for tricks that are vain," the book thief who may want certain plates and rare illustrations "is peculiar."

Seymour Eaton, of Booklovers' Library fame, who has recently devoted his advertising and organizing genius to the insurance controversy as the Secretary of the International Policyholders' Committee, at a substantial salary, tendered his resignation last week, to take effect immediately. His own statement of the case is as follows:

"When I accepted this position I believed this movement to be righteous, unselfish, public-spirited, and in the best interest of the great body of policyholders. I have been outspoken in giving publicity to this opinion. I feel that I now owe it to you and to the other eminent gentlemen whom I invited to serve on this committee as well as myself and to the policyholders that I be just as frank and as fearless in expressing my present convictions by a prompt and positive resignation."

The committee under Mr. Eaton's inspiration seems to have undertaken not only to manage the Mutual and New York fights, but to have started a list of policyholders in all mutual companies, most of which have not been affected by the recent scandals. The policyholders who have watched Mr. Eaton's "righteous, unselfish and public-spirited" career in relation with the Booklovers and Tabard Inn fiascos may now breathe easier.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE ALDEN "WAY OUT."

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: In answering Mr. Sherwood's discussion of the "Way Out," in your issue of the 11th inst., I will omit any argument as to rhetoric and punctuation, as not being material.

If it is a part of the settled policy of the A. P. A. to encourage the small dealer, then of course they have what they want, and the entire fraternity is being gradually and certainly brought down to that "small" condition, except as bookselling becomes only incidental.

As to the Frank Lovell scheme, there probably never will be any plan devised to prevent "agents" breaking their contracts, nor of preventing others from "suborning" them to do so, as Mr. Sherwood illustrates.

But Mr. Sherwood seems pretty fairly to acknowledge the success of the Lovell effort to protect his agents, by his expression of ignorance of the existence of the two following successful books of the series. I think Mr. Sherwood can be safely left in Mr. Lovell's hands.

I think also Mr. Lovell may be trusted to improve somewhat upon his scheme to the extent of recognizing the probability that no single dealer can possibly cover successfully so large a field as Greater New York, and that he can easily sell twice as many books by compelling Mr. Wanamaker either to himself cover the ground by sub-agents, properly distributed, or making his Wanamaker contract subject to Lovell's, otherwise adequately covering the territory while protecting Mr. Wanamaker, so that either a man so enterprising as Mr. Sherwood will be certain to occupy the position of sub-agent or that of general agent, with Mr. Wanamaker as "sub."

As to Alphonse, Gaston and the snowball, I will leave them to take care of one another, but as in the little "Alden experiment" of twenty-five years ago, the dull summer days of June, July and August were sprinkled thickly with telegrams from the best booksellers of the country to secure his "exclusive local agency" for his one little line, I imagine that when the A. P. A. enters the field, seeking exclusive local agents, they will have no great difficulty in finding competent persons.

I will add further that the "Way Out" is not claimed as an "invention," but only as an application to the publishing business of methods long familiar in other lines of trade, as Mr. Waterland, in the same issue of your paper, sensibly points out.

Sewing machines, insurance, kodaks and other successful lines of promotion cover the ground sufficiently, and with properly qualified exclusive agents butchering prices and breach of contracts are adequately provided against.

Respectfully yours,

JOHN B. ALDEN.

BIBLE HOUSE, N. Y. City, August 13, 1906.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

SIDNEY C. TAPP, author of "The Struggle," is now in Denver, Colo., writing a novel to succeed his former work.

JOHANN MARTIN SCHLEYER, the inventor of volapük, on the 18th of July celebrated the anniversary of his seventy-fifth birthday at Constance, where he has been settled for twenty-one years. Father Schleyer, who is master of eighty languages and dialects, even to-day is busily engaged in elaborating his world-language. Besides publishing his various grammars and text books on volapük, Father Schleyer has also edited several religious anthologies and founded a monthly devoted to religious poetry, entitled Die Stonsharfe.

OBITUARY NOTES.

MISS E. DENROCHE died on August 10, at Belmont, N. Y., aged sixty-eight. Miss Denroche was well known to thousands of the book and news trade through her efforts to better their conditions. She was especially active and emphatic in her protest against the freight charges of the American News Company, and her intelligent methods of inquiry carried weight and influence. Her father was a bookseller of note in Dublin and London half a century ago. Miss Denroche leaves a library of many scarce and valuable old Irish books.

FRANZ J. FREIHERR V. LIPPERHEIDE, the well-known author and publisher, died on July 30 at Berlin. Von Lipperheide was born July 22, 1838, at Berleburg, Westphalia. In 1865 he established himself in the publishing business in Berlin. Among the more important publications of his firm are Die Modenwelt and Illustrirte Frauenzeitung. Von Lipperheide wrote and compiled "Lieder und Sagen vom Rhein," "Lieder zu Schutz und Trutz," "Gaben deutscher Dichter aus der Zeit des Krieges in den Jahren '70-'71," "Mustersammlung von Holzschnitten aus englischen, nordamerikanischen, französischen und deutschen Blättern," etc. He was the founder of the fine collection of books on costumes, (12,000 volumes and 30,000 plates,) now in the Kunstgewerbemuseum in Berlin.

THE German booktrade has sustained a heavy loss in the death on July 27 of L. W. F. Otto Mühlbrecht, of the Berlin publishing firm of Puttkammer & Mühlbrecht. Mr. Mühlbrecht was born in Braunschweig, February 28, 1838. After graduating from the Braunschweig Gymnasium, he served his apprenticeship in the book business of Bock & Co. in his native city. His journeyman's service was spent in the employ of Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht at Göttingen, at the Universitätsbuchhandlung in Kiel, with Melbus & Co. at Elberfeld, at Amsterdam, London and Paris. In 1866 he returned to Leipzig, where he took charge of the foreign department of T. O. Weigel, and later was connected with B. Behr at Berlin. In 1868 he founded, in Berlin, with Albert Puttkammer, the firm of Puttkammer & Mühlbrecht, publishers of scientific works. Mr. Mühlbrecht was active—in fact a pioneer—in the various copyright movements in Germany, both in person and with his pen. He compiled a valuable bibliography of legal literature entitled "Wegweiser durch die neuere Literatur der Rechts-und Staatswissen-schaften," in 36 volumes, and wrote works on the history of the booktrade in Germany and in Holland; on Beethoven and his works, etc. His most important contribution to the history of book collecting was "Bücherliebhaberei [Bibliophilie, Bibliomania] am Ende des 19. Jahrhunderts," which appeared first in 1896 and in a revised edition in 1898. Mr. Mühlbrecht will be remembered by visitors to the various international copyright and publishers' congresses as a man of impressive personality, over six feet tall, endowed with varied and deep knowledge, yet modest to a degree, courteous and easy of access.

GEORGE ROE LOCKWOOD, one of four generations of publishers who were in business in Connecticut and New York for upwards of one hundred years, died on August 12, at Mystic, Conn., aged eighty-five, having been born in Bridgeport, Conn., March 31, 1822. He entered Yale at a very early age, but was obliged to give up his studies on account of ill health, and at the age of twenty entered his father's business. His business was founded in 1798, in Bridgeport, by his grandfather, Lambert Lockwood, 2d, who removed to New York City in 1816 and established himself on Canal Street. One of his sons, Roe Lockwood, the father of George Roe Lockwood, succeeded to the business and continued it at 411 Broadway, near Lispenard Street, until 1862, when the junior partner of the firm of Roe Lockwood & Son, (George Roe Lockwood,) succeeded to the entire management of the business, and for years continued it at 812 Broadway under the firm name of George R. Lockwood. In 1881 Mr. Lockwood admitted his son, Richard B., one of the fourth generation of Lockwoods to enter the book business, and the firm became George R. Lockwod & Son. In 1888 George R. Lockwood retired and the firm went out of existence. Mr. Richard B. Lockwood continued in the book business until 1890, and since then has been engaged in other lines. The Lockwoods, from the start, were booksellers rather than publishers, their publishing being confined to text books, among which their French and Spanish school books by Robertson, Del Mar and Chouquet, and their series of Ollendorff's manuals for Spanish and French students, edited by Francisco J. Vingut were especially popular. Mr. Lockwood from 1840 to 1861 interested himself in the reissues of Audubon's "Birds of America," reproducing a selection of 140 plates from the first edition in colored lithographs, of which three editions were printed, and a similar reissue of Audubon and Bachmann's "Viparious Quadrupeds of North America." The lithographic stones from which these editions were printed were destroyed in a fire that consumed the building in Philadelphia where they were stored. Mr. Lockwood was in every sense of the word a Christian gentleman who had a host of friends in business and social circles. He held the office of elder, and was treasurer for upwards of forty years in the University Place Presbyterian Church and of the old Mercer Street Church, positions held by his father before him, and was a Ruling Elder of the church in New York City up to the time of his death.

MRS. PEARL MARY TERESA CRAIGIE, better known as "John Oliver Hobbes," the author and dramatist, was found dead in her bed in her London house, on the morning of August 13. Mrs. Craigie, who was in apparently perfect health, left her home on the Isle of Wight on the 12th inst. to keep an engagement in London. Mrs. Craigie was born in Boston, Mass., November 3, 1867, and was educated under private tutors in this country, at Paris and at the University College, London. Mrs. Craigie was the daughter of John Morgan Richards and Laura Hortense Arnold. Her father was the son of the Rev. Dr. James Richards, of New York, and her mother was the granddaughter of Peter Spearwater, who represented Sherbourne in the Colonial Parliament at Halifax for twenty-five years. On one of her visits abroad Miss Richards met and married Reginald Walpole Craigie, a grandson of Colonel Craigie, of the Bengal Military Board. At the time of her marriage she was only 19 years old. In the next four years she suffered much unhappiness, and in 1895 obtained a divorce, returning to her father's house. In 1892 she was received into the Roman Catholic Church. The question of religion having been settled, it occupied her intensely for two years after her divorce. She had written a little and her writings under the name of John Oliver Hobbes had been admired. Within the next two years she had written three plays, all of which were successes. From the day of her decision, until her death, to make literature her life-work, she was seldom idle. Book after book and play after play flowed from her pen. On her last visit to America she lectured on literary subjects, and after her return to England she delivered several lectures on "America's Worship of Wealth." Among Mrs. Craigie's works were: "The Sinner's Comedy," "Some Emotions and a Moral," "A Bundle of Life," "The Ambassador," a play; "Journey's End in Lover's Meeting," a one-act play written for Ellen Terry; "The Gods, Some Mortals, and Lord Wickingham," "The Herb Moon," "School for Saints," "Osborn and Ursyne,' a tragedy in three acts; "Robert Orange," "The Serious Wooing," "Love and the Soul Hunters," "Tales About Temperaments," "Imperial India," "The Vineyard," "The Flute of Pan," and "The Wisdom of the Wise." Mrs. Craigie was, as well, a frequent contributor to the newspapers and magazines. At the time of her death Mrs. Craigie was engaged in adapting her play, "A Time to Love," for publication as a novel. Her last novel, "The Dream and the Business," is also ready for issue.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

DAVIS & HARVEY, the auctioneers of 1112 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, have issued a list of thirty-two catalogues of important sales conducted under the management of Stan. V. Henkels, which they are still able to supply with the prices at which the items were sold. The catalogues are all of important sales, containing copies of historical letters, many facsimiles of the same, reproductions of rare portraits, extracts of historical documents, facsimile title-pages of rare American books, etc., embracing material of the utmost importance to the historian, as well as forming a guide for booksellers and collectors of their auction value. Many of the catalogues embrace the papers of departed statesmen that have been sold by their heirs, which through the medium of public auctions have been scattered broadcast, making reference to them impossible, except through these catalogues. The series of catalogues of the Hon. Hampton L. Carson and the Hon. James T. Mitchell sales have been compiled with care, and form the best guide for collectors of engraved portraits of notable Americans. A very few copies of each remain, in some instances only one.

Wilhelm Junk, 201 Kurfürstendamm, Berlin, has published his international directory of second-hand booksellers—"Internationales Addressbuch der Antiquar-Buchhändler." The directory contains the addresses of 2165 dealers in second-hand books, of which number 153 are located in the United States, 13 in Canada, 14 in Central and South America, 5 in Asia, 10 in Australia, 5 in Africa, 523 in Great Britain and Ireland, and the remaining 1442 in Europe, including the following countries: Belgium, Denmark, Germany, Spain, France, Italy, Holland, Norway, Austro-Hungary, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, Switzerland and Sweden. The directory is arranged in three sections: (1) alphabetically under countries, (2) by specialties, and (3) alphabetically by firm name, so that, whether one desires to know what dealers are in Belgium, or in some other country, or makes a specialty of works on fine arts, etc., or where a certain dealer in old books resides, the book gives a ready answer under the three heads. As a first attempt the book is remarkably free from errors, though now and again, in the foreign lists as well as in that of this country, it is apparent that the compiler depended upon second-hand information and so was misled. The list of dealers in old books in the United States might easily be improved by omitting such firms as Baker, Voorhis & Co., Matthew Bender & Co., Funk & Wagnalls Co., James Pott & Co., to mention only a few, who are not dealers in second-hand books, and by including, for example, the names of George H. Richmond, the important old-book department of Charles Scribner's Sons, Ernest Dressel North and others that should find a place in such a list. Martinus Nijhoff cannot be classed as an American bookseller, and as "Woodward, 78 Nassau Street, New York," died in 1903, and his business was discontinued, his name might be safely dropped from a "live" list. But, on the whole, the work fills a gap and will be useful to those who need a list of this kind. Mr. Junk in his foreword speaks of his work "als erstes seiner Art"—a statement that needs qualification, in view of the fact that Mr. Clegg for years has supplied similar information to international booksellers dealing in second-hand as well as in new books. A brief biographical sketch of Bernard Quaritch, accompanied by a fine photogravure portrait, is prefixed to the list. (8+82 p. 8°, cl.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

Callaghan & Co., Chicago, announce that "Hutchinson on Carriers" will be published in three instead of two volumes, and will be completed some time in October.

John Joseph McVey, Philadelphia, will bring out in October a new edition, the fifth, rewritten and enlarged, of Dr. Charles Platt's "Manual of Qualitative Analysis and of Medical Chemistry for Physicians and Students."

Henry Altemus Company will publish next month "The King's Daughters' Year Book," by Margaret Bottome. This will no doubt be gratifying news to the 600,000 members of the organization of which Margaret Bottome is the president.

Henry Holt & Co. will publish early next month "The Cruise of the Violetta," the fourth book by Arthur Colton. It is largely in the vein of the author's "The Belted Seas," in which discriminating critics found some of the good qualities of Jacobs, Stockton and Dickens.

George Edmund Platt, the Eastern representative of the Reilly & Britton Co., is established for several weeks at Room 568, Broadway Central Hotel. Mr. Platt has complete samples of the genuine Webster dictionaries controlled by the Reilly & Britton Co., as well as of their large miscellaneous line.

Edward Stern & Co., 116 N. Twelfth Street, Philadelphia, will publish on September 1 "The Roosevelt Bears, their Travels and Adventures," by Seymour Eaton. This bear book is intended chiefly for children and will have a picture on each page by V. Floyd Campbell, sixteen of them in colors.

The American Sports Publishing Company, 21 Warren Street, New York City, has just brought out "The Olympic Games of 1906 at Athens, Greece," edited by James E. Sullivan, commissioner of the United States to the Olympic games. The work is illustrated with eighty pictures from photographs and contains a summary and table of results.

E. P. Dutton & Co. have just ready "Q's" new book, "From a Cornish Window;" also, "Jottings of an Old Solicitor," by Sir John Hollams, who has attained the good old age of 86, and reached the highest rank in his profession, whose book contains reminiscences of the great judges of recent times, and of the famous barristers, and deals with certain aspects of legal matters, interesting especially to the "limbs."

A French journalist recently complained to Tolstoy that the American people were devoid of ideals, and devoted only to the passion of money-getting. Professor Brander Matthews, in an address given before two colleges, set himself to answer these and other sweeping charges made by foreign critics. His address is now being brought out in permanent form under the title of "American Character," by Thomas Y. Crowell & Co.

The Century Co. has under way a new and revised edition of "The Bible for Young People," which is to sell at one-half the price of the original edition. It will be a large book, with twenty-four illustrations from the old masters. They have also made a collection of the best of the fairy stories, rhymes and pictures that have appeared in St. Nicholas. These will soon be published under the title "Fairy Stories Retold from St. Nicholas."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish in September a new book by Marion Harland, entitled "The Distractions of Martha." It relates the experiences of a young housewife who has set out to manage the affairs of a modest household near a city. Her trials and triumphs, adventures and misadventures are described, and also the way she dealt with the servant question in the suburbs. There will be ten full-page illustrations by R. Emmett Owen.

THE PUBLIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, Chicago, will publish shortly Frederick C. Howe's story, "The Confessions of a Monopolist," which is now running as a serial in The Public. This is a story of the career of a monopolist of to-day, who through acquiring monopolies advances in power and gets a seat in the United States Senate. Two chapters in the book will embody the articles "The Confessions of a Commercial Senator," which appeared last year in The World's Work.

THE JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY are now ready to supply orders for C. H. Forbes-Lindsay's book on "Panama, the Isthmus and the Canal." The author has had unusual facilities for preparing his work, and describes in full the canal as it will actually be constructed, giving also a history of the country and the work done towards building a canal through the isthmus from the earliest times to the present. The volume contains two large maps and numerous illustrations from photograph and explanatory maps in the text.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY have started their list of holiday gift and travel books for this fall with the publication of a new edition of "The Cities of Northern Italy," by Grant Allen and George C. Williamson. This edition is in two volumes, and is illustrated with eighty full-page illustrations. Mr. Allen's work on his travel books was a delight to him, and the intimate way in which he took his readers by the hand and entertained them with his fund of historical and artistic knowledge, well leavened with the wit of his original observations, makes it a delight to the readers also.

HARPER & BROTHERS are announcing for the holidays "A Japanese Blossom," by Onoto Watanna, an amusing story of a mixed Japanese and American family. Picturesque Japanese festivals and customs add their interest to a story told with all the charm and naïveté which Onoto Watanna knows how to impart to her work, and the work is illustrated by American and Japanese artists. For the young there will be "A Little Son of Sunshine," a story for girls and boys by Ellen Douglas Deland; and "The Beautiful Story of Doris and Julie," by Gertrude Smith, a merry tale of two poor little sisters who are adopted by a lonely but wealthy maiden lady, and whose adventures make good reading for little minds from three to ten years old.

THE autumn announcements of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., which will be ready for distribution the last of August, will comprise over forty new titles, together with about twenty books in new and revised form. Their leaders in fiction are new novels by Mrs. Clara Louise Burnham and Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward, and a volume of short stories by Miss Alice Brown. In biography there are the "Life and Letters of Lafcadio Hearn," by Mrs. Elizabeth Bisland, a work of great promise; "Walt Whitman," by Professor Bliss Perry; and "John Sherman," by Hon. Theodore E. Burton. "Shakespeare's Complete Works" appear in the one-volume Cambridge Poets Series, and the "Complete Poems of Edward Rowland Sill" are collected for the first time in one volume at a popular price.

THE AMERICAN GYMNASIA COMPANY, Boston, has in press a book on "The Art of Swimming," by Richard F. Nelligan, instructor of gymnastics, athletics and aquatics at Amherst College. The book is designed partly to present certain important facts regarding swimming and to call attention to the need for including swimming instruction in the school and college curriculums for men and women, as has been done in Germany and England. Means of accomplishing this and an outline of what one American college has already done are told in the book. It also includes a concise practical description of the fundamental and exhibition strokes, illustrated graphically from drawings and photographs. The book brings forth points likely to prove of real interest not only to swimmers, but to educators and those who desire to advance the physical welfare of the people.

D. APPLETON & Co. have in preparation Clara E. Laughlin's new book of advice to women, "The Complete Beauty Book," and "The Complete Home," by the same author, the two to form companions to her "Complete Hostess;" "The House of Islam,' a new novel of Turkish life and customs by Marmaduke Pickthall, author of "Said, the Fisherman;" "The Avenging Hour," dealing with English social life, which is to introduce to American readers the popular English author, H. E. Prevost Battersby; "The Guarded Flame," by W. B. Maxwell, author of "Vivien," a story about English people; also, the sixth volume of John Bach McMaster's "History of the People of the United States," bringing the history down to 1842. Another volume, bringing McMaster's history down to the beginning of the war between the States, will complete the work.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD COMPANY will publish in October "The President of Quex," a woman's club story by Miss Helen M. Winslow. "Quex" is the fictitious name of a thoroughly up-to-date club, and the story is of a young and beautiful woman suddenly bereaved of all she loves in life, and changed to a recluse in her fine home, to whom the presidency of Quex comes as a revelation and brings a new and larger life. Under the leadership of the president and her loyal supporters Quex becomes a power for social betterment that even a legislature must reckon with, and is especially efficient in respect to that blot upon our civilization, child labor. It comes at a time when the attention of the whole country is focussed upon that very subject, and shows what women's clubs may do in beneficial civic lines. The story has a charming romantic interest, with two love stories involving prominent characters, and a vivid presentation of a modern bachelor maid and bachelor man.

HERBERT B. TURNER & Co., announce another book by John Collis Snaith, author of "Broke of Covenden," entitled "Henry Northcote," the story of a criminal trial in which the hero acts as advocate; "Perkins of Portland, Perkins the Great," by Ellis Parker Butler, eight funny stories by the author of "Pigs is Pigs," in which the leading part is taken by Perkins, the Sherlock Holmes of the modern advertising world, giving vivid accounts of his adventures in patent medicines, mineral waters, guinea pigs, book publishing, etc.; also, "The Borderland of Psychical Research," by Dr. James H. Hyslop, vice-president of the Society for Psychical Research, in which the author deals with the abnormal, such as double and triple personality, the secondary self, hypnotism, hallucinations and pseudo-spiritistic phenomena. Dr. Hyslop's former work, "Science and Future Life," dealt with the scientific investigation of trance phenomena, and "Enigmas of Psychical Research" dealt with the supernormal. These and the forthcoming book give a comprehensive account of the findings of the Society of Psychical Research during the last twenty-five years.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY will publish in October a new book by Roy Rolfe Gilson, entitled "Katrina," a story of a newspaper writer who lives over again the love of his youth in the little daughter of the woman he lost. The book will have six illustrations, in color, by Alice Barber Stephens. They will also bring out in October a companion volume to their last year's "Christmas Carol and The Cricket on the Hearth" in "Mr. Pickwick's Christmas," with illustrations by the same artist, George Alfred Williams; the first volume of Russell Sturgis's "History of Architecture," dealing with the architecture of Egypt, Western Asia, Greece, Etruria and Rome, an important feature of which will be the careful study of the climatic influences on architecture and of the relations of the domestic to the monumental architecture in various countries; also, a charming book for young people, "Lady Hollyhock and Her Friends," by Margaret Coulson Walker, which instructs children in a pleasant narrative text how to make dolls out of endless things, flowers, fruits, nuts, corn husks, potatoes, snow, rags, paper, dough, etc., etc., at least fifty dolls in all, some of which are peculiarly attractive as they are reproduced in color in the forthcoming volume, and others of which are humorous.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will have ready during the early autumn the Knutsford edition of Mrs. Gaskell's works, on which the editorial work has been done by Dr. Adolphus Ward, Master of Peterhouse, Cambridge. "Wife and Daughter" and "North and South" will appear first in the set. In fiction the books promised include "A Draught of the Blue," translated from the Hindu by F. W. Bain, who did such fine work on "The Digit of the Moon;" "Shibusawa, a Story of Japanese Life," by I. William Adams; and two volumes of children's stories; "Twilight Fairy Tales," by Mrs. Ballington Booth; and "The Enchanted Land," by Louey Chisholm, who is following up a previous series of stories that scored a success with the little people some time since. Of literary and artistic value will be "The Ethics of Wagner's Ring of the Nibelungen," by Mary Elizabeth Lewis; "The Heart of Hamlet's Mystery," a study by Karl Wedder, translated by Miss Elizabeth Wilder, to which Professor W. J. Rolfe has written an exhaustive introduction; and part 1 of volume 2 of J. J. Jusserand's "Literary History of the English People," covering from the Renaissance to the Civil War, to be followed by part 2, volume 2, "From the Civil War to the Pope," and volume 3, "From the Civil War to the Present Day." A record of the very popular motor-car trips will be Michael Myers Shoemaker's "Winged Wheels in France," covering nearly 5000 miles of travelling through the Rhine Valley and into Switzerland.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have in preparation "The Dragon Painter," a new Japanese romance by Sidney McCall, author of "The Breath of the Gods," "Truth Dexter," etc., which will be handsomely illustrated; a "Handbook of Polar Discoveries," by General A. W. Greely, who bases his work on his earlier "Handbook of Arctic Discoveries," having brought all the information up to date and adding a summary of the brilliant achievements of adventures in the frozen North within the years that have elapsed since it was published; "Janet," a story for girls, by Anna Chapin Ray, the second volume in the new Sidney Series of books for the young to be issued in the fall, with illustrations by Alice Barber Stephens; "The Silver Crown," another collection of fables for old and young by Laura E. Richards, intended as a companion volume to "The Golden Windows;" "In Treaty with Honor," by Mary Catherine Crowley, a story of the struggle of French Canada for independence in 1837-1838; also, "The Wonders of the Colorado Desert," in which George Wharton James describes his perilous journey made down the overflow of the Colorado River in Southern California to the mysterious Salton Sea. They also announce a new uniform edition of the works of Plutarch. This edition will consist of Dryden's translation of Plutarch's Lives, in five volumes, corrected from the Greek and revised by A. H. Clough, with photogravure frontispieces; also, Plutarch's Essays and Miscellanies, in five volumes, comprising all his writings collected under the title of "Morals," translated from the Greek by several hands, corrected from the Greek and revised by W. W. Goodwin, with an introduction by R. W. Emerson, and illustrated with photogravure frontispieces.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

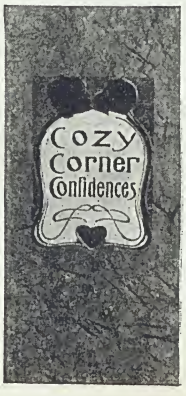
ANNOUNCEMENTS FOR FALL

Dodge Publishing Co.

40-42 East 19th Street

The following books represent a few of the many good things we have to offer the trade for the coming holiday season. The public looks forward with eagerness each year to the showing of the "Dodge" publications, and in many of the larger stores our unique productions are the central attraction. We would suggest a personal visit to our comfortable sample rooms, if convenient, but if you cannot visit us we promise you careful and prompt attention by mail. Samples will be cheerfully forwarded to responsible booksellers and advertising literature gratis. If you have not got our booklet "Good Things for Booklovers," send for it to-day.

BIRTHDAY BOOKS. An entirely new line, printed from new type, with decorated borders in color by Gerta Schroedter. Three titles—Shakespeare, Longfellow and Emerson. Beautifully bound in decorated cloth, $1.00; full limp morocco, $1.50 half; morocco, hand sewed and tooled, $2.50; full morocco, hand sewed and tooled, $3.50. (Ready Sept. 1st.)



COZY CORNER CONFIDENCES. By WALTER PULITZER. A companion volume to "A Cynic's Meditations." The sayings are even better than "A Cynic's Meditations," (now in its 16th edition), concerning which John Kendrick Bangs said: "Many of the epigrams are delicious," and the London Sketch adds: "We certainly place Mr. Pulitzer far above other American writers of epigrams." Made in unusual size and style. Boards, 75 cents; leather, $1.00. (Ready.)

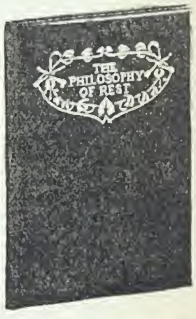
THE BIOGRAPHY OF OUR BABY. Verses by EDMUND VANCE COOKE and drawings by BESSIE COLLINS PEASE. An entirely new baby record book. New colored plates by a popular artist; verses by the author of "Chronicles of the Little Tot," and paper made to be written on with pen and ink. These are a few of the points that go to make this the best book on the market at the price. Cloth, $1.50; silk, padded, $3.00; ooze leather, $4.00. (Ready.)

THE INGOLDSBY LEGENDS. A handsome edition of this favorite classic, beautifully printed and bound. Made in two handy volumes, with frontispiece in photogravure. Cloth, $1.50; limp leather, $2.00. (Ready.)

TOLD TO THE LITTLE TOT. EDMUND VANCE COOKE'S first book for children is going to make a decided hit everywhere. Bound uniform with his volume of poems about children, "Chronicles of the Little Tot," and containing thirty-nine illustrations by BESSIE COLLINS PEASE, nine in full color.

There is probably no one in the world better fitted to tell stories to children than Mr. Cooke. His recent poems about children show a wonderful insight and a thorough knowledge of child life and character, and in a very short time Mr. Cooke's poems have obtained a wide and cordial reception. Cloth, $1.50. (Ready September.)



CHRISTMAS BOOKS by Charles Dickens, containing all of the Christmas stories, beautifully printed and bound. Two volumes, cloth, $1.50; limp leather, $2.50. (Ready.)

THE PHILOSOPHY OF REST. By E. A. FLETCHER. A work of great helpfulness to those who would find rest from the nerve-wrecking rush of present-day life. Cloth, 75 cents. (Ready.)

A PRAYER. By MAX EHRMANN. This beautiful prayer, which has had a circulation of about half a million copies, is printed with several other choice prose poems by the same author in an artistic little volume in gold and two colors. One of the most successful books made this year. Leatherette, 75 cents; ooze leather, $1.50. (Ready.)

GREAT IDEALS. Five new titles are now ready—Duty, An Ideal, Crossing the Bar, The Psalm of Life, Day by Day. Dainty bindings in leatherette padded, 35 cents; English leather, 75 cents. (Ready.)

HAND COLORED BOOKS. "Rimes of the Ancient Mariner," "Legend of Sleepy Hollow" and Browning's "Saul." Hand colored initial letters, Japan inserts, original ornaments. Bound in full morocco, $2.00. (Ready September.)

SEPTEMBER
Announcement No. 1

BY THE AUTHOR OF BROKE OF COVENDEN

HENRY NORTHCOTE

By JOHN COLLIS SNAITH

12mo, cloth, $1.50

Mr. Snaith has written another remarkable novel, which is very original, very interesting, and very powerfully told. It is the story of a criminal trial in which the hero acts as advocate. Mr. Snaith has told the story with all the cunning of his art, which he so well exemplified in "Broke of Covenden."

THE LONDON TIMES ON READING ADVANCE SHEETS SAID:

"It is the most interesting story that we have read for months and months."

BY THE AUTHOR OF PIGS IS PIGS

PERKINS OF PORTLAND
PERKINS THE GREAT

By ELLIS PARKER BUTLER

Illustrated. 12mo, $1.00

Eight exquisitely funny stories in Mr. Butler's best vein. Perkins is the Sherlock Holmes of the modern advertising world. The stories give vivid accounts of the immortal Perkins' adventures in the advertising of patent medicine, mineral water, real estate, guinea pigs, book publishing and comic opera. Buy it and laugh. It is to the point.

BY THE AUTHOR OF SCIENCE AND A FUTURE LIFE

THE BORDERLAND OF PSYCHICAL RESEARCH

By JAMES H. HYSLOP, Ph.D., LL.D.

Former Professor of Logic and Ethics at Columbia University.
Vice-President of the Society for Psychical Research, Author of "Problems of Philosophy," etc.

12mo, cloth, $1.50 net. Postage 12 cents extra.

"SCIENCE AND A FUTURE LIFE" dealt with the scientific investigation of trance phenomena, "ENIGMAS OF PSYCHICAL RESEARCH" dealt with the supernormal, "The Borderland of Psychical Research," deals with the abnormal, such as Double and Triple Personality, The Secondary Self, Hypnotism, Hallucinations, and Pseudo-Spiritistic Phenomena. The three books give a very comprehensive account of the findings of the Society of Psychical Research during the last 25 years.

TO BE PUBLISHED SEPTEMBER 15th

CAPTAIN COURTESY: A Story of Old California. By EDWARD CHILDS CARPENTER. 12mo, cloth, decorative cover. With five illustrations in color by Elenore Plaisted Abbott. Price, $1.50

A dainty little story, neat, clean and artistic, with Southern California in the old mission days as a charming background.

MADE IN HIS IMAGE. By GUY THORNE, author of "When it was Dark," etc. 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.50

The phenomenal sale of Mr. Guy Thorne's "When it was Dark" ensures a big welcome for this new story from his pen. It deals with a problem now exercising the minds of many.

TO BE PUBLISHED SEPTEMBER 29th

TRUSIA. By DAVIS BRINTON. 12mo, cloth, stamped in gold. With illustrations in color and black and white by Walter H. Everett. Price, $1.50

A tale suggesting the "Graustark" kind of novel. Full of rapid action, intense interest and exciting situations. One reader calls it "a rattling good story."

QUEEN OF THE RUSHES. By ALLEN RAINE, author of "A Welsh Singer," "Torn Sails," etc. 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.50

A love story showing the life of the Welsh people of to-day in a realistic manner. There is cleverness of plot and good portraiture, but more than anything else are we impressed with the depth of feeling portrayed and the poetic beauty of the story.

YOUR HEALTH. A collection of upwards of 100 clever toasts, being an entirely new compilation by IDELLE PHELPS. Different decorations on every page by Helen Alden Knipe. 16mo. Decorated boards, price, 75 cents net
